Boston man admits to robbing Bank on Bussey Street

Contact: D.Traub, 781-830-4917

The Boston man who robbed the Dedham Savings Bank on Bussey Street last spring has been sentenced to prison for the crime, according to Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey.

Andrick Lamarre, 21, of Mattapan, entered the bank shortly after 10 a.m. on April 10 2015 wearing a gray North Face jacket pulled over a black hooded sweatshirt and a light colored winter cap. He presented a deposit slip to the teller for $5,000; when the teller asked him to confirm what he wanted, he handed a second note demanding large denomination bills in five seconds or he would shoot.

The FBI Bank Robbery Task Force was already investigating Lamarre for four robberies in Suffolk County at the time of the Dedham robbery.

He had already received a county jail sentence on the Suffolk County matters when he admitted his guilt in the Dedham robbery to Judge Beverly Cannone in Norfolk Superior Court last Wednesday (Oct. 28, 2015).

Assistant Norfolk District Attorney Emily Nesson asked that Lamarre be sentenced to 3 to 5 years in State Prison and be ordered to have no contact with the teller he robbed. Cannone sentenced him to 2 to 3 1/2 years in State Prison, lengthening his term of incarceration and transferring him to the state system, according to District Attorney Morrissey.

A finger print matching the defendant had been found on the deposit slip he left behind at the bank. His image was also captured on the bank's video surveillance system. When the FBI tracked him to his brother's residence in the state of New York, he was still in possession of several thousand dollars in cash and the articles of clothing pictured on the surveillance footage.
